Last holiday, my father took us on a trip to Pulau Langkawi. We took a direct flight from Johor Bahru. It was the first time we went on a flight and it was amazing looking through the window and be surrounded by clouds.

Pulau Langkawi is indeed a great holiday destination. First of all, it is surrounded by natural beauty and one feels relaxed. The turquoise sea has a calming effect. One thing I find interesting about the place is that the island itself is made up of many small islands. The greatest thing about the place is that there is always something for everyone. You can go island hopping, enjoy water sports and the beach as well as go shopping.

The only downside about the place is that it has become very commercialized. The place is losing its charm because it is very crowded. All in all, I had a wonderful holiday. This is definitely a place to go for a getaway from our busy city life.

Kitty is so endearing. She is like an angel sent to me. (Use a simile to describe the kitten.) Her looks melt your heart. I found her dirty and hungry after having fallen into a drain near a bus stop on the way back from school last week. She was meowing so pathetically in the drain when I noticed her. She must have fallen into the drain for some time. Shivering, she looked into my eyes imploring me to rescue her. I put down my backpack, knelt down and bent over to gently lifted her out of the drain. (What

I push the heavy thrift store door
As I have many times before
And low-priced treasures row-on-row
Shout silent secrets I can't know.

Bright shiny bike with slipped-off chain.
Wool sweater with a chocolate stain.
Wooden blocks to give my brother.
Garden gloves for my grandmother.
Teapots glazed in greens and blues.

All call to me, Reuse. Reuse.
I touch things, hold things, wonder why
They showed up here. Sometimes I buy
A toy, a book, a shirt or two.
Thrift stores make each old thing new.
